

A visit to the dentist

Today, let's talk about a visit to the dentist. It's a place all of us at some point in our lives end up visiting. Most people hate going, as the thought of having a filling or a tooth removed generally puts the fear of god up them.

Many dental practices have a waiting room. Some magazines generally sit in a pile on a table next to some chairs. Fish tanks used to be popular in waiting rooms.

At the reception desk you check-in. The receptionists are always helpful and busy. Most dental practises have long waiting lists. Certainly one should go once a year for a check-up. A visit to the hygienist might follow. The moment arrives when you are called into the dentist's surgery. It is a pleasant greeting. The niceties of the day follow ahead of sitting in the dentist's chair. Suddenly you have to open your mouth. This is when you are trapped. You have a moment of fear. There is no escape!

If you are having a filling there is the fear of the drill or drills, as well as pain. An injection may be needed. You are glued to the seat. The dentists face is staring down at you. There is the ceiling or light above you to look at to avoid their face.

The tooth is cleaned and drilled. The filling is applied. A dentist's assistant is on hand at all times to help the dentist complete the task. From time to time you take a drink of water from the plastic cup and spit out the bits from the treatment given. You are mightily relieved when it is all over and the dentist's chair goes into the upright position.

Lastly, there is the shock of the bill. Dentists are not cheap! They have a living to earn much like everyone else. The difference here being - we can't live without them! Carry on the good work!
